

Horror Classics

Fred Krueger

Movie Facts

- Robert Englund, who is now famous for playing Freddy Krueger, was actually not the first person to be picked for the role. They wanted a stuntman to play him instead.
- This was Johnny Depp's first movie.
- The lamb that appears in the film could not be persuaded to run across the corridor, so it got a hefty kick up the backside. Poor lamb...
- All the boiler room scenes were filmed at Lincoln Heights Jail, which is now a condemned building due to all the pipes being covered with asbestos.
- When Johnny Depp is asleep in his room (just before he gets killed) with the T.V. on. The television says, "It is now 12 midnight and this is station KRGR leaving the air." KRGR is Krueger without the vowels.